Cross-Disability Early Intervention Centres for Children with Disabilities:

Early childhood (0-6 yrs) is a time of remarkable brain development. It is the critical period that determines a persons's ability to reach her/his lifelong health, social and economic potential. Providing quality early childhood intervention early in a child's life supports them to develop the skills needed to enable him to lead an independent and dignified life. Early Intervention provides specialized support and services for infants and young children at – risk or with disability and/or development delay and their families to help their development, well-being and participation in family and community life. Initially, single-window Early Intervention Centres in 7 National Institutes and 7 Composite Regional Centres were set up as pilot basis and now 22 Cross-Disability Early Intervention Centres for Children with Disabilities (CDEIC) are operational across the National Institutes and Composite Regional Centre.
